

Directions to St Cassian's Centre, Kintbury, RG179SR

If you have a satnav, the above postcode may well take you to the correct place. However there are stories of people ending up in a field somewhere, so the following may be useful should the satnav fail you.

- These directions assume you will be travelling towards Kintbury along the A4 from either the east or the west.
- Roughly half way between Newbury and Hungerford, you will see a sign for Kintbury pointing south off the A4.
- Take that turning and head south along Station Road.
- Cross a couple of narrow bridges over the River Kennet and you will come to a level crossing at Kintbury Station.
- After crossing the railway you will immediately cross the Kennet and Avon Canal, pass the Dundas Arms on your left and the road then curves to the right uphill into Kintbury.
- This is a narrow road with cars parked along it so take care and be patient with oncoming traffic.
- The road first passes Newbury Street on the left and then Inkpen Road on the left at a crossroads with shops.
- Continue ahead on what is now the High Street, past the Blue Ball and turn left into Wallingtons Road.
- There is a sign on the brick wall ahead of you at the junction pointing to St Cassian's Centre.
- Follow Wallingtons Road out of the village and into open country.
- You will eventually come to an entrance through two brick pillars.
- Continue along the road taking care to avoid any wildlife until you reach a fork in the road with some signs.
- Take the left fork and the road will take you round to the back of the house to the Old Stables courtyard.
- Park there and the entrance door is on the right side as you face the building where you should find a registration desk.
